Claims

[c1] 1.A method of initiating a suspension of a device connected to a parent device comprising the steps of:

receiving a request from a user;

generating an interrupt signal from the device to the parent device; concluding any data transfers between the device and the parent device; and, providing an indication to the user once all data transfers between the device and the parent device have concluded.